FOREIGN NOTES

The total cost of the Ashantee expedition is estimated at £900 000. Of this £40 000 was paid to native carriers.

The Vendome Column, in course of reconstruction has now reached the bas relief No 44 on the sixteenth thread having only seven to complete the monument.

A portion consisting of 10 000 copies of a recent issue of the Dundee Advertiser was printed on the paper manufactured from reeds grown on the banks of the Tay. The paper is said closely to resemble that made from jute. As far as the experiment has been tried it is said to be satisfactory.

An interesting discovery has been made at Beddington in Kent England. Some workmen employed digging gravel found the remains of a Roman warrior who had evidently been buried in his armor together with some arms. Some time ago the remains of a Roman villa were found in the same neighborhood and a quantity of coins, Roman and British.

The Jewish Chronicle announces with some satisfaction that two members of the Hebrew race have recently obtained high distinction in the military examination at Woolwich. There are only five Jews among the officers of the British Army—one at Woolwich another in the Royal Engineers, two in the artillery and one in the One Hundred and Fourth Fusiliers.

In an action for damages on the ground of slander tried recently in the Small Debt Court Glasgow the defender refused to say whether or not in open lodge he had made certain slanderous statements against the prisoner. He pleaded that all Masons were bound by an oath not to disclose what was done in the lodge. Sheriff Murray however overruled the objection, and ordered the defendant to answer the question.

POSTAL CARD REVOLUTION

During eleven months of the year dating from May 1 1873 not less than 100 000 000 postal cards were used. Fifteen cities took nearly half of this amount, as will be seen by the following showing:

New York	11 [illegible]00 000
Boston	[illegible]10 000
Philadelphia	4 500 000
Chicago	4 [illegible]00 000
St. Louis	3 100 000
Cincinnati	1 900 000
Baltimore	1 8[illegible]0 000
San Francisco	1 330 000
Buffalo	1 200 000
Washington	1 1[illegible]0 000
Louisville	1 000 000
Pittsburg	1 000 000
Cleveland	[illegible] 000
Detroit	8[illegible]0 000
Milwaukee	[illegible]0 000
Total 1[illegible] cities	[illegible]1 108 000

The postal card is the first realization in this country of penny postage. It is not a novel device but was copied from the English system as were most of our postoffice improvements. It has been held that the country was not prepared to adopt the cheap postal system of England in its entirety on account of the vast area of territory and the thinness of population. But the postal card involves all the care of a letter delivery and is a substitute for a letter in a vast many instances where only a brief correspondence is needed. San Francisco is now using not far from a million and a half of these cards annually. A few years ago the transmission of as much written intelligence as is now conveyed by a postal card would have cost the sender a quarter of a dollar. The ends of the earth are now embraced in the most beneficent system of cheap postage ever devised.—S. F. Bulletin.

THE TRANSIT OF VENUS.—The preparations made for viewing the forthcoming transit of Venus are very complete. Great Britain from the extent of her empire and the number of observatories she has in all parts of the world will command by far the most numerous observations. But in addition to the permanent [illegible] existing in the colonies she has special stations in the Sandwich Islands [illegible] Kerguelen Island [illegible] Alexandria [illegible] the Cape of Good Hope the Mauritius, New South Wales and Victoria. The United States count upon [illegible] stations at [illegible] Hobart Town New Zealand Chatham Island [illegible] the Mauritius and some places [illegible] three stations [illegible]

WAYSIDE [illegible] REVIVAL.—During a recent revival in the city of [illegible] it was the custom of clergymen to go out into the street at night and invite any poor unfortunate who might be wandering until the [illegible] echoes to [illegible] where prayer was mingled with hospitality. On one occasion a dignified and portly old divine found a young woman standing at the corner of a street in rather an undecided attitude. "Young woman," said he, "will you come with me to the house of prayer. I would save you from a life of misery here and damnation hereafter." "O, if you please, sir," replied the unprotected female, "I aint a social evil. I'm only waiting for a bus."

Grand Prairie Grange No 10 Linn county moved to the new school house in Dr Geary's farm last week and at the first meeting in the new house they initiated forty one candidates. What Grange can wax that?

There is a new party in the field. The Oregon City Enterprise says: The young men of this city will hold a meeting at the Court House this (Friday) evening for the purpose of nominating a reform ticket independent of party politics.

Hon W W Buck, chairman of the Independent committee in Clackamas county has issued a call for an Independent Mass Convention to be held at the Court House in Oregon City May 9th for the purpose of selecting an Independent county ticket.

The Record says: "The full quota of State taxes has been paid up from all the counties except Baker Curry Grant Polk Umatilla Union and Wasco and the balance due from these is not large. Polk county is about $700 behind which is thought to be about the difference between the original assessment and the rate the State Board of Equalization sought to establish."

We are indebted to the Enterprise for the transactions during the month of April in the Oregon City Land Office: 70 declaratory statements filed; 22 donation certificates issued; No of homestead entries filed 15 covering an area of 1 608 94 acres; No of final homesteads 4 covering 664 27 acres; amount of cash sales $807 70; 1 land warrant containing 40 acres; 7 pre-emptions containing about 800 acres.

Some counties are always in debt to the state for taxes and the Record gathers the following facts: Prior to 1870 the books show unpaid balances against Marion county for $540; Multnomah county $4 [illegible] 41; Tillamook $61 62; Wasco $1 [illegible] 41; Union [illegible] 30 34. There are unpaid balances charged as follows for years subsequent to 1870: Baker county for 1870 $661 71, for 1872 $704 03; Grant for 1871 $74 0[illegible]; Umatilla for 1870 $1 3[illegible] for 1871 $316 0[illegible] for 1872 $305 8[illegible]; Union for 1872 $1 102 97.

From Mr H A Johnson who has been to Jefferson on a business trip the States Rights learns that—to use his words—"they are plowing the whole country up and sowing it to grain." He reports that land which has heretofore been used only for pasturage has this season been considered by its owners as good enough to be plowed and sown to wheat while stock is turned out to shift for itself. Much hill land about Jefferson has also been made acquainted with the plow and throughout that part of the country an immense amount of land will be cultivated—much more than usual.

Speaking of the state taxes the Record says: Of the $14 000 due from counties as deficit in accounts in 1870 the present State Treasurer has labored diligently and has collected the greater part. The duty devolves upon the next Legislature to take into consideration this question of unpaid taxes due from different counties and dispose of the matter as justice requires. It is not proper that part of the counties be excused from their reasonable share of the State burdens; also if there is any claim for relief that is urged on the part of some counties the claim should be heard and decided without delay. As it is the State Treasurer's books are encumbered with these accounts carried over from year to year which should either be canceled or collected.

There is considerable brush land in Oregon and Clackamas county has its full share. A farmer from that county [illegible] gave us a description of his success in clearing and working crop on such land which is of interest to all farmers. He says he slashes and burns off the land at the proper season and the thicker the brush is the better the experiment works. After burned over clean wheat is sown and brushed into the ashes and the result is 20 bushels to the acre which more than pays all expenses of clearing and fencing the first crop. [illegible] the brush burn [illegible] roots are rotted [illegible] cultivation.

THE GUBERNATORIAL CANVASS

EUGENE April 29 1874.

The [illegible] In consequence of the previous announcement that Governor Grover T F Campbell and Mr J C Tolman nominees of the Democratic Republican and Independent parties for Governor would discuss the political issues before the people in the present campaign there was a good attendance of farmers from the adjoining precincts. A lively time was anticipated by the people and they were not disappointed. At 1:30 P M when the meeting was called to order by [illegible] and Major Brown in [illegible] there were probably [illegible] persons in the Court House. The [illegible]burg Band was in attendance and played a number of appropriate tunes as the meeting assembled and at suitable intervals.

GOVERNOR GROVER OPENED THE DISCUSSION.

He spoke for an hour and fifteen minutes. His address was chiefly made up of a defense of his administration during the past four years and a declaration of what he would do if re-elected. The Governor's appearance is prepossessing, his manner of delivery is earnest and his matter free from anything low, vulgar or obscene. From his example in the latter respect Richard Williams and J C Tolman may learn profitable lessons. The Governor entered into a lengthened defense of the Locks and Canal at the Willamette Falls by which the navigation of the Willamette river was opened to legitimate competition. The new Penitentiary was explained in detail and its importance to the State elaborated and pointed allusions were made to the shortcomings of former executive administrations indicating the improvements and reforms during his.

The capitol building, the [illegible] the litigant act the police bill the fee bill the increase of salaries to the Executive, Clerks and Judges and fees to the Treasurer were explained and defended. He seems to take great pleasure in reviewing his action in vetoing the $100,000 railway subsidy bill thereby saving the State from a large debt and heavy taxation. He referred to the demoralized state of the Executive and State Departments on his entering on his official duties four years ago and that much of the additional expense incurred was in putting these departments into thorough working order. If re-elected he promised to repeal the litigant act the police bill or any other bill that was the expressed will of the people. He concluded by stating that not a single dollar of the public money was misapplied during his four years as Governor; that his administration was characterized by honesty, honor and efficiency.

MR J C TOLMAN

The nominee of the Republican party was the next speaker. He occupied the stand for half an hour. He commenced by defending himself from the charges of being a gambler a horse racer and a drinker. The first he distinctly denied, the second he in part admitted merely to test the merits of his own horses with the object of selling them to advantage but he did not bet on them; the third charge he overlooked, but he has not the appearance of a drinker. He made some jokes at Mr Campbell's expense and not a few hits at Governor Grover that took well with the audience. He promised if elected, to cut down the expenses of the State Government to the lowest point possible; to administer the Government for the interests of the people; to be the organ of no ring or party; to fear no man in the discharge of his duty but to fear God and obey the dictates of his conscience. As an illustration of his fitness for the position of Governor, he gave a detailed account of his success as County Judge in Jackson county which he found $20 000 in debt and after eight years left a balance in the Treasury.

PROFESSOR CAMPBELL

Was well received by the audience and made an impression on the meeting at once that he is no common man and entitled to a candid hearing which he got to the end of his address. He spoke for an hour. His reference to the political marriage in Roseburg on Saturday last, between the Democratic groom and the Republican bride [illegible] produced a roar of laughter. The first fifteen minutes of his speech sparkled with dignified wit that told against the parties of his two rivals. He argued that the virtue and intelligence, the independence and happiness of the people are the grand objects of all good government so that it may be permanent, enduring and progressive. At this point, Mr Campbell rose to the full height of his grand theme. He exposed the corruption and extravagance of the National and State government, went into details for proof the confirmation of which was the uprising of the people of this and other States demanding a reform of these abuses. On the present occasion he was the exponent of the Reformers in this State and if the people elected him to the honorable office of Governor he will do all in his power to prove himself worthy of their confidence.

Mr Campbell confirmed the high opinion formed of him by his friends by his dignified and gentlemanly manner, his argumentative and able address and the ready and efficient manner in which he handled his opponents. Those of opposite parties not acquainted with him were surprised and pleased for the same reasons. His address will strengthen the Independent cause here and do away many prejudices.

NORTHWEST.

The following is told of a young society gentleman who graduated from Harvard. On the examination of physics he was asked "Mr ——, what planets were known to the ancients?" "Well sir," he responded, "there were Venus and Jupiter and"—after a pause—"I think the earth but I am not quite certain."

PUBLIC OPINION

If more greenbackers [illegible] to make a President, if inflation is the great power of the future we must anticipate that the rising statesman who is to lead it to victory is not Oliver P Morton but Geo H Pendleton.—Cincinnati Commercial (Ind.)

Our Cabinet Ministers when their attention has been called to the facts patent to all the rest of the world, have either treated the warning with derision or cast about for fresh combinations to protect themselves from assault. They have been successful thus far and the country is paying the penalty.—Boston Advertiser (Rep)

The facts considered with greatest leniency show that Secretary Richardson has either neglected his duties or is not possessed of sufficient ability to comprehend the responsibilities of his position. In either case it is his plain duty to place the commission of Secretary of the Treasury at the disposal of the President.—Utica Herald (Rep.)

If President Grant and the Republican party are intending to shelter and champion such monumental corruption as has lately thrust forth its slimy head, beginning with the Credit Mobilier business and the Sanborn contracts and ending with this crazy and wicked inflation bill, then President Grant and the Republican party should and will fall. But we hope for better things.—New Haven Journal and Courier (Rep.)

We hold now as we have always done that the vast overwhelming majority of the people of this country are devoted heart and soul to the honest principles of the Republican party, but they will not longer sustain that party should it continue to assume the responsibility of such a gross outrage against the liberties of the people as is this Louisiana business. Those who have any doubts on this point may consider with profit the late elections in New Hampshire and Connecticut.—Philadelphia Inquirer (Rep.)

In spite of Mr Morton's talk about the best Civil Service in the world the people are not convinced that the passage of Mr Woodford's bill would be a work of supererogation. The Custom house frauds and seizures the moieties the Jayne and Sanborn investigations and the frequent revelations of similar excesses in every department of the Government are sufficient answer to the absurd statements with which Congressmen are trying to stave off civil service reform.—Philadelphia Evening Bulletin (Rep.)

BEECHER AND TILTON.—The late counsel has sprung the Beecher scandal upon the public again and Sherman, who was one of Jim Fisk's lawyers makes some strange statements regarding it. He said in substance to a reporter who recently interviewed him that so far as Tilton was concerned he was out of his mind off his balance and did not act reasonably. As for Mrs Tilton she had occasioned the whole trouble while in a half crazed condition. She had mediumistic fits and while under the strange power that possessed her often spoke of the most incredible things, declared things possible that were impossible and among the rest had slandered Beecher. Tilton himself had acknowledged that all the other things she had told him in her mediumistic trances were false and impossible; then why should the scandal on Beecher be the only truth in her crazy words? That Dr Storrs was undoubtedly jealous of Beecher, and was determined to break down his growing reputation; that his speech showed his jealous, spiteful feeling conclusively. But Dr Storrs was a ruined man in his action in this matter.

THE DEEPEST WELL IN THE WORLD.—At about twenty miles from Berlin is situated the village of Sperenburg, noted for the deepest well that has ever been sunk. Owing to the presence of gypsum in the locality which is at a short distance from the capital it occurred to the government authorities in charge of the mines to obtain a supply of rock salt. With this end in view the sinking of a shaft or well sixteen inches in diameter was commenced some five years ago, and at a depth of 280 feet the salt was reached. The boring was continued to the further depth of 960 feet the diameter of the bore being reduced to about thirteen inches. The operations were subsequently prosecuted by the aid of steam, until a depth of 4 104 feet was attained. At this point the boring was discontinued, the borer being still in the salt deposit which thus exhibits the enormous thickness of 3 907 feet.

AN ICELANDIC JUBILEE.—It is anticipated says the London Academy that there will be great excitement in Iceland this summer in duly commemorating the thousandth year jubilee of the colonization of the island. In strict conformity to history, the year 1873 would have seemed the more correct period for such a celebration since it was in 873 that the first settlers Ingolf and Leif after a search of three years found the sacred seat-posts ([illegible]) which they had brought with them from Norway and thrown into the sea when they first approached the shores of the island in 870. These venerated objects after having been left to drift along with the waves and currents under the guidance of their tutelar deities as was supposed were traced by Ingolf and Leif to the fjord subsequently known as Reykjavikfjord where they founded the settlements which gave origin to the town of the same name.

The Washington street car conductor is a fragile bud. He never hoists a lady passenger upon the platform with his fingers under her rib. He touches her gingerly by the elbow and an unkind glance would wither his tender soul. A DIGNIFIED DEBATE IN CONGRESS

Mr B F Butler is a gentleman of most amiable wit. We have happened on a most felicitous illustration of the text occurring in the very debate in which the Speaker brought the Essex Indian up with a round turn for saying that President Grant would not veto the Senate Finance Bill. S Dewdrop Cox had charged Mr Butler with having thrown out to the House the opinion of the Executive, when the following spirited colloquy ensued:

Mr Butler, of Massachusetts—I have distinctly said to the contrary. If the gentleman's ears had been as acute as they are long he would have understood it. [Laughter.]

Mr Cox—From the length of the gentleman's ears he would appear to be the organ of the Administration. [Applause.]

Mr Hale of New York—I wish to ask the gentleman from Massachusetts whether I correctly understood him that in proposing to take from the Speaker's table and have passed the Senate bill he does not propose that as a finality on this question, but only as an entering wedge for that further increase of the currency which he esteems desirable.

Mr Hale of New York—Perhaps I did not understand the gentleman.

Mr Butler, of Massachusetts—I will make myself clear to the most moderate capacity. [Laughter.]

And then in the debate on the appropriation for the White House (to which we alluded a day or two since) the following lively and interesting conversation was held:

Mr Cox—All that has been read by the honorable gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr Butler) about the prodigality and luxury of the early days about George Washington and John Hancock and the other Federalists does not affect the frugality the honesty and the incorruptibility of the honest men who served the country then on small salaries. * * * I do not care for sumptuary laws. I would not care if my friend from Massachusetts (Mr Butler) should come in here in a sky blue pair of pantaloons and address the House. It would add to the attractions of the General. [Laughter.] I will read what I saw in a paper the other day to account for this extraordinary proceeding here to-day:

Some one remarked to Butler the other day that Dawes' speech had been printed in pamphlet form by the Democratic Executive Committee of Connecticut and scattered broadcast throughout the state. "What is its effect?" he asked. "Bad for the Republican party, General." Butler studied awhile and made answer: "Let me tell you one thing: when an old brindled steer like Dawes gets into the habit of breaking out of the pound every night when it is dark or drizzly, there is no cornfield in the country safe. He knows too many secrets sir and by—"

I know the profanity is not that of the gentleman named—

he must have a bell hung about his neck.

Mr Butler's turn came soon after.

Mr. Cox—I wish to call attention in the half minute allowed me to one fact. The sketch which the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr Butler] read about the early days and in which he made a point on the Democratic party for their lack of simplicity in those early days is a fancy sketch.

Mr Butler of Massachusetts—I am glad to hear it.

Mr Cox—It was written by Grace Greenwood the other day, and published in the Washington Chronicle of April 11 1874.

Mr Butler of Massachusetts—I am glad to hear it.

Mr Cox—Then the gentleman put before the House for fact what was merely a fancy sketch.

Mr Butler of Massachusetts—Pardon me whenever I put before the House any supposed conversation from a newspaper so dirty miserable and vile as that which the gentleman used before the House I will stand corrected, but not by the gentlemen from New York.

Mr Cox—What the gentleman read was a mere fancy sketch. The gentleman is a good man, I know, but he is not smart to-day.

Mr Butler of Massachusetts—Pardon me you are neither good nor smart.

Then 3.65 convertible bond Kelley of Pennsylvania, took a hand:

Mr Kelley—I desire to ask the gentleman from New York a single question.

Mr Cox—Well sir.

Mr Kelley—I want to know whether he can tell me if there are as many gold spoons in the Presidential Mansion now as Spooney Ogle found there when Van Buren was President?

Mr Cox—Why do not you address that question to your own side of the House? It does not belong to this side. [Laughter and clapping of hands.]

It was with such admirable pleasantries as these that the average Congressman beguiles the tedium of his official duties and relieves the sombre inspirations of Sanborn developments.

The debate at Roseburg between the candidates for Governor is the subject of a letter from our traveling correspondent which will be found in another column. The discussion between Governor Grover and Mr Campbell was what the people have a right to expect from two dignified and courteous gentlemen. Mr Tolman devoted considerable time to a defense of his personal character from charges of gambling drinking and horse racing. His defense amounts to this. He doesn't drink, neither does he gamble and as for horse racing he indulges in that pastime only to sell his stock to good advantage. Tolman says he never bets on his own horse in a race. This remark betrays a lack of confidence in his stock wholly unbecoming the Chief Magistrate of a great people. It implies also that Tolman always bets on the other man's horse and this means perhaps that he is in the habit of putting up jobs on the race track. He would better stick to his currycomb. When the people of Oregon conclude to take a jockey for Governor they will choose a man who keeps blooded stock and bets on his own animal.

A BRIEF WILL.—The will of the late Judge Edmonds which was admitted to probate recently by Surrogate Hutchings is one of the shortest of the instruments of the kind on record. The property is said to be not very large. The full text of the will is added:

The last will and testament of John W Edmonds of the city of New York.

I give devise and bequeath to my daughter Laura all my estate of every name and nature to have and to hold to her in fee and absolute ownership.

And I hereby appoint my said daughter executrix and James Freeland of Brooklyn and Charles [illegible] Livermore of New York executors of this my last will hereby revoking all former and other wills made by me.

SATURDAY MORNING MAY 2 1874

THE WORK DONE AND HOW IT WAS DONE

The country delegates to the Republican County Convention to be held to-day and those city delegates who are not let into the secrets of the regency of the party, may be relieved of some anxiety in relation to the work to be done by the Convention to be informed that they have been saved most of the trouble of selecting a ticket That onerous task the ring kindly took upon themselves and on last Thursday night, at a meeting at the residence of Mr J H Rathbun, deputy under Sheriff Caywood gentlemen who are to be defeated at the June election were nearly all selected It may appear strange that this meeting should have been held at a private house and if at a private house, then at the house of Mr J H Rathbun, deputy under Sheriff Caywood But that apparently suspicious feature of the case admits of a complete and satisfactory explanation It happened in this wise Mr Sheriff Caywood is a candidate for renomination The ring worked hard for him in the primaries and he worked hard for himself On the very eve of the primaries it was painfully manifest to Mr Sheriff Caywood, and to the ring, that with anything like a fair expression of the legal voters who contemplated supporting the Republican ticket at the June election, Mr W W Spaulding would be designated as the candidate for Sheriff. Under these circumstances it stood the ring in hand to bestir themselves, and bestir themselves they did All of them worked as only such can work, and they do say Mr Sheriff Caywood expended a very large amount of money to secure favorable delegations Even the officers of the railways went out into the shops and mills and urged the employes to go out to the precinct meetings and work for the success of Mr Caywood's delegate tickets, assuring the said employes that Mr Holladay greatly desired the re election of that gentleman And with all this combined effort the city was carried for Mr Caywood, or was supposed to be so carried But through the ensuing week there came out some ugly rumors about Mr Caywood's having mistaken some of his men, and it was said Spaulding would very likely be the choice of the Convention after all, as the country precincts were supposed to be decidedly favorable to him. Further action was necessary to secure the fruits of the victory won at the primaries Can any one blame Mr Sheriff Caywood and his ring friends for employing every lawful expedient to make the nomination sure? It had already cost him money, and already he had experienced the wear and tear of conscience inseparable from a campaign of the kind he had been carrying Mr Spaulding on the other hand, had no such cogent reasons to insist upon the nomination. Delay was dangerous. Mr Caywood therefore called a caucus of a part of the delegates enough to elect, if all could be united This caucus was so constituted, by the simple means of giving notice to none but such as were already bound to Caywood, and enough of those considered uncertain to make a majority of the Convention The meeting was convened at the Court House But soon after the assembly was called to order, it was discovered that another mistake had been made There were some delegates present who declared they would not be bound by a vote of that caucus, because all the delegates were not present or notified to be present and it was unfair to the absent delegates to put up things in that sort of way Then there was some whispering between prominent members of the ring and then the whispering went round the room only it was noticeable that the anti ring delegates were not whispered to. In a few minutes the delegates began to leave the room singly and by twos, saying that since no conclusion could be arrived at they were going home And so the crowd dispersed. But they did not go home, the ring men and the men who were willing to make agreements with the ring did not They went singly and by twos to Mr Rathbun's residence and there they did the work for which the caucus was designed. One of the delegates who had been troublesome at the Court House meeting, somehow got wind of what was going on, and went to Rathbun's and demanded admission, but was refused He was not the right kind of a delegate So the meeting was harmonious, that is, the swapping was amicably done till the following nominations were agreed upon

For Sheriff, J M Caywood, Clerk, W H Harris County Judge, J H Woodward, County Commissioners C M Wiberg (the other not agreed upon) Treasurer, S J McCormick Assessor O M Barnard, Superintendent of Schools Williamson State Senators David Powell and Sol Hirsch, Representatives, J M Stott, N Kennedy, Joseph Howell (the other four not agreed upon, but pretty well understood that "Shakspeare" Ferguson will be one of them) This leaves some of the minor offices to be filled, but that will be comparatively a light task

Don't ask us how we found out these facts, but watch the result of the Convention to-day, and see how far it proves us correct There may be some unimportant changes some of the candidates may refuse to stand seeing the fraud is exposed, but in the main the arrangement will stick .

That was the shrewd trick of a cunning jockey—Tolman's getting odds on his defeat from the Custom House Ring The Ring as everybody knows, agreed to pay him $2,000 in case of his defeat with the understanding that if he be elected he pay his own expenses That is Tolman, who always bets on the winning horse now bets his expenses against $2,000 that he will be beaten He'll win the money

The Marysville (Cal) Appeal puts in this good one The President has commenced to unload' His veto of the inflation bill is the first dump of the Administration cart driven by Ben Butler'

Tolman is evidently running a scrub race against himself He can have no competitors None but himself can be his parallel

Tolman is doing all he can to disgust decent people with him He wants that $2,000

BOSS MILWAIN'S AND CREDIT MOBILIER HIGGINS' SECOND LINE OF DEFENSES

It got too hot for the ring when their Credit Mobilier transactions in connection with the building of the Custom House came to be analyzed Their success in finding out that $5 90 was a divisor of $15 40 and that it would consequently do for an explanation of that very ugly check for $15 40 seemed to relieve them very much But the trouble is it did not last It was good enough so long as further inquiry on the subject was not pressed, but the moment it was put into the crucible for more critical analysis it only made the case look darker than before The Bulletin said the agreement was that Higgins was to pay Milwain $5 per day for Starr's work but the letter of the Gruft [illegible] Milwain's book keeper charged $6 per day for work in July and $5 90 in August These figures required explanation and we took the liberty of asking the individuals concerned why they charged six dollars instead of five, why five dollars and ninety cents instead of five dollars? Why if not solely because after making the most they could out of their lying statement of the time worked by Starr it was still necessary to seek out divisors for the two vouchers which would allow the stated number of working days? Here there was another corner Such a conundrum had not been anticipated Another effort of ring ingenuity—another cudgeling of ring brains was indispensable But that piece of combined machinery called the ring is a marvelous article in some respects The things which it can't invent are not known to any rogue that walks Of course an expedient was soon devised to meet this case—to answer the demand exactly That expedient was the fluctuations of the currency It had to do with inflation expansion, elasticity An elastic currency was just "the cheese" So the whole matter was set at rest at once—alas! that it could not be forever!—by stretching the elastic currency over those ugly places in the story and completely covering them with that convenient substance Here it is just as the Bulletin put it just as we were overwhelmed with it

> Why indeed? Go, you most ridiculous and colossal fool up to your masters and owner's bank and find a clerk who can inform you how to figure the coin value of greenbacks Doubtless he will take pity on you and tell you that $5 in coin the price paid for the labor amounted in July at the rate currency was then selling to $6 in greenbacks and that in August,—as the coin value of currency fluctuates from month to month —$5 in coin was equivalent to $5 90 in greenbacks No man with a spark of intelligence nobody but a dull fat witted fool would make himself a public laughing stock as the fellow who runs the OREGONIAN has done in this case

Before proceeding further, we desire to remark, parenthetically, that we consider "most ridiculous and colossal fool" good, simply as a matter of fine writing and that we are charmed beyond expression with the dignity of the entire paragraph quoted from the Bulletin But what we were about to say is that we "most ridiculous, colossal," and so forth, were on the eve of waltzing into our bank to cross examine our numerous clerks on the subject of the expansive capabilities of an elastic currency, when the Evening News was laid on our table, and we were elated, if not inflated, at the discovery that the editor of that journal who is unquestionably another "most ridiculous colossal" and so forth, or words to that effect, had been to his bank, and had subsidized his clerks to go through the expansion and contraction problem and the work had been done as thoroughly as any one of our clerks, or all of them combined could have done it And here is the result of the News' call upon the clerks of its bank a result which will make it necessary for the ring to make another effort or die for lack of making one, after the sad example of poor Mrs Dombey

> By reference to the files of the Bulletin we get the following gold quotations for the two periods when the monthly account for Starr's work was made up
> July 30th 1873—Gold 11⅝ legal tenders, 87⅛—86¼
>
> August 30th 1873—Gold 11 ½ legal tenders 8 ¾—86½
> By this it is shown that there was no such fluctuation in currency as the Bulletin speaks of Apply the quotations to the wages paid Starr and we have for July $6 per day currency at 86¼, $5 10 coin for August $5 90 per day currency at 86½ $5 10 coin Now why was Starr paid more in one month than another and why was he paid more than $5 when his wages, according to the Bulletin were to be $5? There is but one explanation of these figures they were selected to meet the drafts The more you consider them, the more plainly appears the rascality of the ring.

This settles the case unless some other lie shall postpone the final winding up for a few days longer Every explanation offered has but put a worse face upon an affair that looked bad enough at first. The whole case is an illustration of the truth that one lie always makes another necessary

Starr swears that he worked only 17 days in all part in July and part in August This is manifestly the truth All the money he got was $59 50, but the Government paid Milwain for this work $267 40, or else Starr's affidavit corroborated by every circumstance bearing on the case, and by the statement of S M Lyon that Starr worked on his house part of the time for which his services are charged to the Government is a lie In order to make the number of days charged for in August every working day in the month—including the day of the great fire—had to be counted The fire had been overlooked in making out this bill and when the News asked whether Milwain's men worked on the Custom House on the day of the fire the ring in a corner again concocted another expansion story to the effect that Starr worked 10 hours a day, and the Government day's work being only 8 hours a quarter of a day extra was made each day But here again some other falsehood will have to be cooked up to extricate the ring from its most unhappy predicament. This story of the 10 hours per day with consequent credit for a day and quarter taken in connection with the affidavit of Miller published by the ring as a part of their first defense proves a great deal too much. Miller swears that Starr worked on the Custom House with him during the whole August. Now leave out the day of the fire and there are still 25 working days of 10 hours each, or 250 hours' work, which is several days of 8 hours each more than Milwain charged for The News well asks what the ring is going to do with this feature of the case, which is taken wholly from their own evidence We are interested to see the Bulletin's answer If it does not conclude to wind up the discussion on this point at once by calling somebody a "man with a glass eye" or a "dead head" or some name which we can not admit into our columns even as a quotation from the ring organ we must guess

If human evidence direct and circumstantial can be relied on to establish any fact to a moral certainty it is shown to be morally certain that a little over 78 per cent of the $267 40 paid by the Government for Starr's work on the Custom House stuck to the fingers of those who had the work in hand The adhesive properties of the digits of Boss Milwain seem to excel those which have made Boss Tweed and Boss Shepherd notorious if not celebrated, while Credit Mobilier Higgins need not shrink from a comparison with the great Oakes Ames as to the ability to put it where it will do the most good

WILL SHERIFF CAYWOOD ANSWER

Since it has been determined by the ring to renominate Mr J M Caywood for Sheriff of this county and since the conundrums heretofore propounded to that gentleman by correspondents of the OREGONIAN do not go to his official conduct as Sheriff during the term about to close it is an appropriate occasion for us to submit to him some few questions which he will be called upon to answer before the electors of this county between now and the first Monday of June

First—How much money did it cost you to carry the South Portland primaries Is $800 too high a figure

Second—What was the object of holding your caucus last Thursday night secretly and refusing admittance to delegates who were supposed to favor the nomination of Mr Spaulding

Third—What is the nature of the bond between you and the Holladay Tipple Custom House ring, that they are so bent on having you re elected at all hazards?

Third—Did you receive certain papers in an action at law or suit in equity to be served on Mr Holladay, and carry them round in your pocket for several days pretending you could not find him, while he was here in the city all the time, and return the papers "not found" after he had gone away before your very eyes?

Fourth—Did you while carrying those papers in your pocket and pretending to be in search of Mr Holladay visit his house in the night time and have conversation with him?

Fifth—Did you decline to extend the time for the collection of taxes due from a poor man of this city, or to advance the money for him for one day, telling him the law did not allow you to do so while you were extending exactly that favor to other persons? And did you withhold your report of the railway's nonpayment of taxes for some weeks after they were delinquent?

If these things are not true, you can save a deal of troublesome questioning in the campaign by making that fact appear at once

PARTY JOURNALISM

The recent developments of the rascalities practiced in the construction of the Custom House in this city and the persistent and contradictory defenses made by the Bulletin on behalf of the parties engaged in these rascalities, have suggested some inquiries touching the theory of journalism upon which the Bulletin is conducted In all seriousness we should be glad to be informed by the "associated editorship" of the Bulletin whether he (or they) desire it to be understood that as the organ of a party, a paper is bound to defend every villainy that may be enacted by persons whom the party has placed in office Is this the true basis of party journalism? Is the idea of 'the party right or wrong' to be carried to such lengths that theft of the public money must be covered up even at the sacrifice of truth to save a scoundrel who happens to be of service to the party from decapitation and other possible penalties? If this is the theory upon which partisan journalism must proceed; if party spirit, not content with paralyzing the patriotism and searing the conscience of the politicians with reference to political questions is to go further and raise up a system of journalism which will make of the newspapers of the country excusers of high crimes, cities of refuge to which the worst offenders may confidently flee for protection and safety if only they can show a stainless party record back to the last election let that fact be definitely understood

REAL ESTATE IN APRIL [illegible] transactions in real estate [illegible] month of April [illegible] year [illegible] county [illegible] the number of deeds [illegible] recorded [illegible] closed [illegible] which were [illegible] and [illegible] the aggregate amount being $106 [illegible] month In April 1873 the deeds [illegible] $100 or [illegible] number 33 [illegible] aggregate of [illegible] $202,60[illegible] [illegible] three less made this year [illegible] $18,000 [illegible] the April [illegible] respectively [illegible] April this year [illegible] excess [illegible] amount [illegible] was paid [illegible] favorable for [illegible] the three conveyances [illegible] one per [illegible] passing

The mortgages recorded in April this year were 4[illegible] in number for sums ranging from $[illegible] to $[illegible] the aggregate secured by the mortgages filed during the month being [illegible] In April last year 34 [illegible] for [illegible] the aggregate [illegible]

An inspection of the record shows that a much [illegible] proportion of the purchase price of land has been secured by mortgage this year than last an indication of a more plentiful supply of money in general circulation With [illegible] perhaps to about $12 [illegible] the deeds recorded this past month contain the true consideration while exceptions of that character in April last year would probably reach $10,000 At present dealers in real estate are experiencing a fair amount of patronage and prices are fully as good as they have been this year

THE WOMEN'S MEETING AT TAYLOR STREET Church last night was of a very interesting character The Scriptures from both of Isaiah were read— Wherefore do ye spend money for that which is not bread? and your labor for that which satisfieth not? Miss [illegible] said Some Portland papers give [illegible] concerning the Woman's War [illegible] from the Eastern papers concerning the noble women at Lower Sandusky and the 25th A[illegible] —here reading detailed description of the work at those and other points Mrs [illegible] said that the people of Portland should go forward that the crown of motherhood was more than starry diadem that the love of infant life was not greater than that of preserving it from later peril after years Miss Gibson read by request, How Jamie Came Home — What Letters were read from Astoria and Seattle expressing sympathy [illegible] Unions there Mrs Dr Thomson said that all that could be done had been done in [illegible] ways for prevention of intemperance, there was nothing left but Heaven to pray Women were now doing the work of removing this great evil from the land just as some of them had been the terminus of the underground railway in slavery times that all should cooperate in their own way and manner Mrs Reed did not think while there was a saloon praying she would find her son there Doctor [illegible] of Forest Grove said he thought the [illegible] way most fitting was that of prayer and he felt it the more after the experience of 40 years of effort in this behalf The President said that two pledges had been prepared one for grocers and one for social drinkers This latter binding the pledged man that he would not invite or accept an invitation of another to drink Many saloon keepers were seen in the audience and the whole meeting was one of enthusiasm The large crowd sometimes broke the usual restraint of the place applauding by clapping their hands and in other ways signifying their approval of what was said and done.

"INFORMATION WANTED —Not of men who have mysteriously disappeared or run away, but a place where men of muscle and men of money can go to make homes for themselves, expend their strength and invest their capital to advantage Such is the [illegible] used [illegible] of inquiry recently received in this city by a gentleman from a large publishing [illegible] house in England The firm [illegible] correspondent on the North Pacific coast who will furnish the fullest information concerning this part of the world its agricultural mineral and commercial resources and prospects a description of its birds fish trees plants flowers [illegible] etc, as well as the industrial resources that may yet be developed and [illegible] already partially or fully under [illegible] The recipient of the letter is a gentleman who has had extensive experience as a newspaper writer and traveling correspondent for the [illegible] the terms can be arranged will begin a work designed [illegible] and this will be [illegible] more extensively circulated [illegible] anything of the [illegible] before [illegible] The inquiry in [illegible] and more particularly in England [illegible] very earnest for information of [illegible] this [illegible] of America and a few years [illegible] will [illegible] a large immigration [illegible] and a heavy flow of capital seeking [illegible] into [illegible] the Dominion of Her Majesty [illegible] The same gentleman has been solicited by the New York [illegible] to write up Oregon and Washington Territory for that widely circulated journal We are coming to the front

REAL ESTATE IN APRIL.—As a rule transactions in real estate are as lively during the month of April as any other month in the year. An examination of the records in the County show the number of deeds recorded for record during April just closed to have been 110 or just one half of which were given for nominal considerations and 55 for sums ranging from $100 to $12 000, the aggregate amount being $106,983 for the month. In April, 1873, the deeds given for $100 or upward number 38 the largest consideration in any one being $72 000 and the aggregate of transactions for that month being $203,690 or $96,707 more than the same month this year but if we deduct three deeds made in April 73 of $18 000 $42 000 and $72 000 respectively we shall find the sales this year exceed those of April last year by $7 293 in amount and 20 in the number of transactions which more than a nominal consideration passed thus showing an increase of business quite favorable for 1874 the three conveyances for large sums alluded to being from one person to another of the same family and the money probably not passing

The mortgages recorded in April this year were 45 in number for sums ranging from $25 to $15,000, the aggregate secured by the mortgages filed during the month being $[illegible] In April, last year 34 mortgages for sums ranging from $100 to $18 000 were filed the aggregate amount being $100 820 or $[illegible] more than during the month just closed

An inspection of the record shows that a much less proportion of the purchase price of property has been secured by mortgage this year than last, an indication of a more plentiful supply of money in general circulation With exceptions, amounting, perhaps, to about $12,000 the deeds recorded the past month contain the true consideration, while exceptions of this character in April last year would probably reach $150,000 At present dealers in real estate are experiencing a fair amount of patronage and prices are fully as good as they have been this year

THE WOMEN'S MEETING AT TAYLOR STREET Church last night was of a very interesting character. The Scriptures from 55th of Isaiah were read—"Wherefore do ye spend money for that which is not bread? and your labor for that which satisfieth not?" Miss Pegancy said "Since Portland papers give so little concerning the Woman's War I will read from the Eastern papers concerning the 300 women at Lower Sandusky, and the W. Alliance —here reading detailed descriptions of the work at those and other places. Mrs. Sutzel said that the people of Portland should go forward, that the crown of motherhood was more than starry diadem that the love of infant life was not greater than that of preserving it from danger or peril in after years. Miss Gibson read by request, "When Jamie Came Home — What bear ye on your shoulders, Men?" Letters were read from a many and Seattle expressing sympathy with the women there. Mrs Dr Thomson said that what could be done had been done in many ways for prevention of intemperance there was nothing left but Heaven and prayer. Women were now doing the work of removing this great evil from the land—just as some of them had been the termini of the "underground railway" in slavery times, that all should co-operate in their own way and manner. Mrs. Reed didn't think, while her son was at a saloon praying she would, and her son there. Doctor [illegible] of Forest Grove said he thought the way most fitting was that of prayer and [illegible], the more after the experience of 40 years effort in this behalf. The President said two pledges had been prepared—one for total abstainers and one for social drinkers. This [illegible] ending the pledged in that he would never [illegible] accept an invitation of another to drink. Many saloon keepers were seen in the [illegible] and the whole meeting was one of [illegible]. The large crowd sometimes breaking the usual restraint of the place, applauding and clapping their hands and in other ways showing their approval of what was said and done.

"INFORMATION WANTED."—"Not of men who have mysteriously disappeared or run away, but of a place where men of muscle and men of means can go to make homes for themselves, and find their strength and invest their capital [illegible] age. Such is the language used in a letter of inquiry recently received in this city by a gentleman from a large publishing house in England. The firm [illegible] a correspondent on the North Pacific coast who will furnish the fullest information concerning this part of the world, its natural mineral and commercial resources and prospects, a description of its birds, fish, trees plants flowers etc. etc., as well as the industrial resources that may yet be developed and those already partially or fully undertaken. The recipient of the letter is a gentleman who has had extensive experience as a writer and traveling correspondent of the press, and as soon as the terms are arranged, will begin the work designed by the parties, and this work will be more extensively circulated in Great Britain and Europe than anything of the kind heretofore published. The inquiry in the Old World and more particularly in England is now very great for information of all kinds from this part of America, and a few years more will doubtless give us a large immigration of people and a heavy flow of capital seeking investment from the dominions of Her Majesty, Queen Vic. The same gentleman has been engaged by the New York Times to write up Oregon and Washington Territory for that widely circulated journal. We are coming to the front.

CITY LICENSES.—During the month of April licenses were issued by the City Auditor for the second quarter of the current year as follows: Liquor, 65; beer, 3 billiard and pigeon hole tables, 22, two-horse wagons, 34 one horse wagons, 89; drays, 20 trucks 17 hacks [illegible] hacks, 9 hotel runners, 6, to sell gun powder, to store petroleum, 1 whitingers, 1 [illegible] 1 Total number of licenses 296 Amount for licenses, $4,700 Of the 65 liquor licenses, 61 were to parties who paid the license for last quarter and 4 were issued to new places opened. So the account shows 1 saloon closed and 3 new ones opened. The amount received for liquor and beer licenses for the quarter beginning April 1st, is $3,335 At the same rate the income from that source for the year is easily estimated at $13,300 The billiard and pigeon hole tables pay $10 per quarter, or $210 for the 22 license

THE HERO.—The Committee on Fire and Water of the Common Council have had the bell belonging to Protection Engine Company taken down from the framework on which it was placed after the August fire. As the bell was cracked by the fall at the time of the fire a mechanic has been employed to drill [illegible] file off the edge of the crack and so if possible destroy the jarring noise which a cracked bell usually makes when struck. If the sound can be restored the bell will be placed on the tower of the company's new building where it originally hung. The experiment of filing out the crack did not work successfully on the bell of No 1 s but as this is of a different composition that having [illegible] steel, it is thought the plan may operate successfully

ADJUDGED INSANE.—Mrs Louisa Kemp, the [illegible] mentioned yesterday morning as probably insane, was taken before the County Judge in the afternoon, and upon the testimony of W [illegible] Edwards, M D, was so adjudged and [illegible] sent to the Asylum at East Portland, where she was at once taken. As this is her first attack it is hoped she will recover. She is 30 years of age, just [illegible] the mother of three children, only [illegible] them, a boy about 10 years old is [illegible]. She is a native of Switzerland, and came to Oregon two years ago from Illinois.

THE HUMAN FAMILY SPRUNG FROM ONE STOCK.—The unity of the human race is a much-mooted question in literary and scientific circles. It also touches Christianity in its deepest signification. This perplexing question will be discussed by Dr Lindsley to-morrow. The morning service will be conducted as usual

COMING OUT.—The ladies of the Temperance League have had a large banner prepared [illegible] across the end of the Taylor Street [illegible]. It is inscribed with the words "[illegible] for Christ. Christians to the [illegible] We are Under Marching Orders, [illegible] is our Watchword," etc

FIGHT AND MAYHEM.—Last evening between 8 and 9 o clock two men named respectively Burk and Williams got into a drunken fight at Pat Conner's saloon corner of Yamhill and Second streets and in the melee Burk got one of Williams' auricular appendages between his (Burk's) incisors and proceeded to masticate it in a voracious and wolf like manner until that member was well nigh chawed up. The interference of an officer prevented further [illegible] and the belligerents were taken to the city jail when the charge of drunkenness was preferred against both of them and Burk was also booked to answer a charge of mayhem

GRANGERS' PICNIC.

THE PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY OF WASHINGTON AND YAMHILL COUNTIES UNITE IN A GRAND PICNIC AT [illegible] ON THE 1ST OF MAY—A RAINY DAY BUT THE AFFAIR PROVES A SUCCESS

May Day, the very name of which is so redolent with the fragrance of flowers, suggestive of floral coronations, bright and pleasant faces and social gatherings, broke cold, damp and disagreeable yesterday morning. Early [illegible] morning the gentle [illegible] which we denominate [illegible] began to descend in copious quantities, and the first sounds which greeted the drowsy tympanum yesterday morning was the [illegible] pattering of the rain. Of all days of the year, yesterday should have been bright sunny and pleasant, for in addition to being the first day of May it was likewise the day on which the farmers of Washington and Yamhill counties were to hold a grand re union meeting. St [illegible] the terminus of the railroad, was the point selected. For some week past the matter was talked up and extensive arrangements made for the gathering. One of the arrangements was for the Granges of these two counties to meet at the place designated and hold a union picnic combining a portion of the customary ceremonies of May Day and the exercises peculiar to the Order of the Patrons of Husbandry. Lunch was to be brought by all who came with the intention of participating, and the occasion was to be honored by the presence of the [illegible]—wives mothers daughters and sisters of the sturdy Grangers. The matter had been talked of and published abroad for weeks and the event was looked forward to with [illegible] anticipations of having a splendid time. Man and women propose and Providence disposes and instead of sunshine nothing but clouds and rain was vouchsafed

Availing of a cordial invitation to be present at this grand meeting, when the interests—social political and material—of the Grangers of Washington and Yamhill counties were to be more firmly cemented in wedlock, we found ourselves seated in the cars yesterday morning at an early hour armed with the reporter's most effective weapons—pencil and note book—to chronicle all that our eyes might see or ears hear of interest. Seven o clock was the hour designated for starting. Many persons were intending to go from this city but the day's threatened inclemency caused them to abandon the excursion, so that when the engineer tapped his bell, there were but few on board. With but little abatement the rain continued to descend in fitful showers which rendered the track slippery and matters generally disagreeable. In consequence of the bad condition of the road the train was compelled to travel quite irregularly moving at a cautious rate over doubtful portions of the track and then dashing at a racer's speed where it was straight and in good condition

ALONG THE ROUTE

Hillsboro was the first station of importance where the Grangers seemed to realize the fact that it was a day of more than ordinary significance among that Order. To witness the crowds assembled at the depot and standing about the platform as the train came thundering up was refreshing to the average city chap. Such a jam of great broad shouldered, brawny limbed sturdy old farmers, such an army of matronly looking wives and mothers and such a crowd of blooming, rosy-cheeked lasses, was rarely witnessed by your modest reporter. There they stood, enveloped in shawls, cloaks and great coats armed with the universal "parachute" seemingly unmindful of the falling shower and cold wind all equipped for the picnic. Baskets and water pails, heaped up with choice viands, were to be counted by the score and they did not escape the eagle optic of the undersigned either. Visions of pies, cakes, tarts meats fruits and all else which could tantalize the appetite, and discussing the same beneath "ye sylvan bowers," rose up with painful vividness in our disordered fancy as we stood contemplating the tempting assortment of the creature comforts. As soon as the passengers were seated, the train dashed on to the next station

At Cornelius, another reinforcement of farmers were taken on board and the cars again moved forward. Forest Grove was the next station and there we found a band of music in attendance, and a number of persons in waiting. In like manner, at all the stations the crowd continued to augment, until the cars were crowded to the extent of their capacity. A number of platform cars were provided with seats in anticipation of an immense crowd, but the drenching showers kept hundreds at home and rendered it too cold and disagreeable for any person to occupy them with the slightest degree of comfort. The Forest Grove band, which accompanied the excursion enlivened the trip both in going and coming with a variety of favorite airs

ST JOE

The objective point was reached about 11 o clock. As might have been expected under the circumstances, but a very small number of farmers were in attendance. The constant, heavy rains had rendered the roads in all directions nearly impassable and hundreds of farmers and their families were compelled to forego the anticipated pleasures and festivities of the occasion by remaining at home. No other result could be expected. However we must say with all due regard for our Yamhill Grangers that they did not manifest the degree of pluck evinced by the members of that order in Washington county in facing the storm and coming out

Soon after arriving the crowds were invited to a large warehouse near by, where the exercises of the day were to be held. A beautiful fir grove situated a few hundred yards north of the town had been selected for the picnic stand and seats provided etc. When the rain came on the grove was necessarily abandoned and seats provided in the large warehouse which was capable of seating comfortably a thousand persons

Order was called by the President of the Day, Mr C T Royal who briefly stated the objects and purposes of the meeting. Music by the Forest Grove Band next followed. Dr J. W Watts came forward on the platform and offered prayer. W D Fenton Esq a young gentleman who has not yet reached his majority was then introduced to the audience as one of the speakers of the day. Mr Fenton notwithstanding he is a mere stripling in years and stature and a farmer by avocation succeeded admirably—even agreeably surprising his Granger friends. He has appeared but a few times before the public in the role of speaker but his effort was worthy of the time place and individual. He spoke for about half an hour during which time he gave an interesting exposition of the rise organization purposes aims and objects of the Order of Grange. His sensible practical remarks were listened to with much interest throughout and warmly applauded. Music was again discoursed by the band after which the President announced that the meeting would adjourn an hour for lunch. No objections were offered and with sharpened appetites the crowds repaired to their lunch baskets and discussed the edibles with gusto

At the hour appointed the meeting was called to order. [illegible] by the band brought the crowd together again. Hon W M Townsend was introduced as the second and last speaker who occupied about 20 minutes. His remarks although free from [illegible] or rhetorical [illegible] were replete with sound practical [illegible] [illegible] At the close of Mr Townsend's speech which was greeted with much enthusiasm the President [illegible] that the [illegible] would be [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

It [illegible] the crowd which would have been [illegible] [illegible] Grange from Yamhill county [illegible] and several more from Washington [illegible] [illegible] It was a complete success even under all discouragements and we will conclude by only wishing that a fairer day had been vouchsafed the Grangers for their union picnic

The Oregon City Democracy will meet this evening to nominate a city ticket

TO PORTLAND CITY.

Tho now in a strange land I wander
Thy memory's dear to me yet
And oft at still midnight I ponder
On scenes I can never forget

I think of thy broad flowing river
Thy beautiful hills long its track
Whilst on my lip trembles a quiver
To think I may never come back

But one thing I did before starting
Which gives me great joy to recall
And drowns half the sorrow of parting—
My Cigars I bought of HART all

Yes gentlemen there are few like them. They bear comparison with the finest and are a superb thing to win and retain the favor of your friends. Candidates would do well to bear this in mind today. You will find them at the corner of First and Washington Streets

The storekeeper who can lay in large and varied Stocks of Goods should be able to afford his patrons excellent opportunities to purchase just what they want at the lowest figures. This is just what JOKOHN opposite National Bank invariably does. His latest importations are so varied and the prices marked down so low that all can be accommodated. Be sure and look through his stock

SPRING STYLES.—A thorough inspection of the latest spring styles in Clothing and Furnishing Goods by Mr J D SCHARF of J O'NEIL & CO while in San Francisco has resulted in the selection of everything new and that firm have just completed opening the new stock. Their customers and the public generally are invited to call and examine the new arrivals. Mr Scharf selects expressly to suit Portland trade and the new goods will be sure to please the most fastidious. Call

The public mind is occupied over the late defalcation about the P D & S I R R and where to procure that needed article—Clothing. There should be no worrying over this matter while it is known that BECK & WALDMAN are offering a large stock of Spring Styles which they propose to sell at once to make room for new goods. They can accommodate all. Boys Clothing a specialty

Do not Persecute the Body

In sickness with medicines that depress the physical energies. What the sick principally need is an accession of vital strength to enable them to cope with the enemy that has assailed them. The diseased system should be sustained toned purified and regulated and there is no medical preparation in existence so largely endowed with the properties required to effect these objects as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. In ordinary practice aperient, blood depurating anti bilious and sedative medicines are administered separately. In Hostetter's Bitters all these agents are combined and act together in perfect harmony so that undue debility and undue excitement are alike prevented and the strength of the patient rallies while the disease is losing ground. In dyspepsia liver complaint chronic constipation intermittent fevers general weakness and all ailments involving physical and mental depression this pure vegetable restorative is a sovereign remedy

SATURDAY MORNING, MAY 2, 1874

RETIRING FROM BUSINESS

BY BRET HARTE

What the Colonel's business was nobody knew nor did anybody care, particularly. He purchased for cash only, and he never grumbled at the price of anything that he wanted—who could ask more than that?

Curious people occasionally wondered how, when it had been fully two years since the Colonel, with every one else, abandoned Duck Creek to the Chinese, he managed to spend money freely, and to lose considerable at cards and horse races. In fact the keeper of one of the two Challenge Hill saloons which the Colonel did not patronize was once heard to absent mindedly wonder whether the Colonel hadn't a money mill somewhere where he turned out double eagles and "slugs" (the coast name for fifty dollar gold pieces).

When so important a personage as a bar keeper indulged publicly in an idea the inhabitants of Challenge Hill, like good Californians everywhere, considered themselves in duty bound to give grave consideration, so for a few days certain industrious professional gentlemen, who won money of the Colonel, carefully weighed some of the brightest pieces and tested them with acids and tasted them and sawed them in two, and retried them and melted them up and had the lumps assayed. The result was a complete vindication of the Colonel and a loss of considerable custom to the indiscreet barkeeper.

The Colonel was as good natured a man as had ever been known at Challenge Hill, but, being mortal, the Colonel had his occasional times of despondency, and one of them occurred after a series of races in which he had staked his all on his own bay mare Tipsie, and lost.

Looking reproachfully at his beloved animal, he failed to heed the aching void of his pockets, and drinking deeply, swearing eloquently and glaring defiantly at all mankind, were equally unproductive of coin.

The boys at the saloon sympathized most feelingly with the Colonel; they were unceasing in their invitations to drink, and they even exhibited considerable Christian forbearance when the Colonel savagely dissented with every one who advanced any proposition, no matter how incontrovertible.

But unappreciated sympathy grows decidedly tiresome to the giver, and it was with a feeling of relief that the boys saw the Colonel stride out of the saloon, mount Tipsie and gallop furiously away.

Riding on horseback has always been considered an excellent sort of exercise, and fast riding is universally admitted to be one of the most healthful and delightful means of exhilaration in the world.

But when a man is so absorbed in his exercise that he will not stop to speak to a friend, and when his exhilaration is so complete that he turns his eyes from well-meaning thumbs pointing significantly into doorways through which a man has often passed while seeking bracing influences, it is but natural that people should express some wonder.

The Colonel was well known at Toddy Flat, Lone Hand, Blazers, Murderers' Bar and several other villages through which he passed, and as no one had been seen to precede him, betting men were soon offering odds that the Colonel was running away from somebody.

Strictly speaking, they were wrong, but they won all the money that had been staked against them, for within half an hour's time there passed over the same road an anxious looking individual, who reined up in front of the principal saloon of each place and asked if the Colonel had passed.

Had the gallant Colonel known that he was followed, and by whom there would have been an extra election held at the latter place very shortly after, for the pursuer was the Constable of Challenge Hill, and for Constables and all officers of the law the Colonel possessed hatred of unspeakable intensity.

On galloped the Colonel, following the stage road which threaded the old mining camp on Duck Creek, but suddenly he turned abruptly out of the road, and urged his horse through the pines and bushes, which grew thickly by the road, while the Constable galloped rapidly on to the next camp.

There seemed to be no path through the thicket into which the Colonel had turned, but Tipsie walked between the trees and shrubs as if they were the familiar objects of her own stable-yard.

Suddenly, a voice from the bushes shouted:

"What's up?"

"Business—that's what," replied the Colonel.

"It's time," replied the voice, and its owner—a bearded six footer—emerged from the bushes and stroked Tipsie's nose with the freedom of an old acquaintance. "We ain't had a lip since last night, and that ain't a cracker or a handful of flour in the shanty. The old gal go back on yer?"

"Yes," replied the Colonel, ruefully, "lost every blasted race. 'Twasn't her fault, bless her, she done her level best. Ev'rybody to home?"

"You bet," said the man. "All been a' prayin' for yer to turn up with the rocks, an' somethin' with more color than spring water. Come on."

The man led the way and Tipsie and the Colonel followed, and the trio suddenly found themselves before a small log hut, in front of which sat three solemn, disconsolate individuals, who looked appealingly at the Colonel.

"Mac, I'll tell yer how 'twas, fellers," said the Colonel, meekly, "while I picket the mare."

The Colonel was absent but a very few moments, but when he returned each of the four were attired in pistols and knives, while Mac was distributing some dominoes, made from a rather dirty flour bag.

"Taint so late ez all that, is it?" inquired the Colonel.

"Better be an hour ahead than miss it this ere night," said one of the four. "I aint been so thirsty since I come 'round the Horn, in '50, an we run short of water. Somebody 'll get hurt, if the' ain't any bitters on the old concern—they will, or my name ain't Perkins."

"Don't count on your chickens 'fore they're hatched, Perky," said one of the party, as he adjusted the domino under the rim of his hat. "Sposin' ther' shud be too many fur us?"

"Stiddy, stiddy, Cranks!" remonstrated the Colonel. "Nobody ever gits along ef they 'low emselves to be skeered."

"Fact," chimed in the smallest and thinnest man of the party. "The Bible says somethin' mighty hot 'bout that. I disremember ezackly how it goes, but I've heerd Parson Buzzy down in Maine, preach a rippin' old sermon many a time. The old man never thort what a comfort them sermons wus a goin' to be to a road agent, though. That time we stopped Slim Mike's stage, an' he didn't hev no more manners than to draw on me, them sermons wuz a perfect blessin' to me—the thought of 'em cleared my head as quick as a cocktail. An—"

"I don't want to dispute Logroller's pious strain," says the Colonel, "but ez it's Old Black that's a drivin' to-day 'nstid of Slim Mike an' ez Old Black allers makes his time, hadn't we better vamose?"

The door of the shanty was hastily closed and the men filed through the thicket until near the road, when they marched rapidly on in parallel lines with it. After about half an hour, Perkins, who was leading, halted, and wiped his perspiring brow with his shirt sleeve.

"Fur enough from home now," said he. "'Taint no use bein' a gentleman ef yer have to work too hard."

"Safe enough I reckon," replied the Colonel. "We'll do the usual. I'll halt 'em, Logroller tend to the driver. Cranks takes the boot, an' Mack an' Perk takes right an' left. An—I know it's tough—but considerin' how ever lastin', eternally hard up we are, I reckon we'll have to ask contributions from the ladies too, ef ther's any aboard—eh boys?"

"Reckon so," replied Logroller, with a chuckle that seemed to inspire even his black domino with a merry twinkle. "What's the use of women's rights ef they don't ever have a chance o' exercisin' 'em? Hev their purses borrowed 'nd show 'em the hull doctrine in a bran new light."

"They're treacherous critters, women is," remarked Cranks; "some of 'em might put a knife into a feller while he wuz 'pologizin'."

"Ef you're afraid o' 'em," said Perkins, "you ken go back an' clear up the shanty."

"Reminds me o' what the Bible sez," said Logroller, "'ther's a lion on the trail; I'll be chawed up,' sez the lazy galloot, or words to that effect."

"Come, come, boys," interposed the Colonel, "don't mix religion an' bizness. They don't mix no more than—Hello, that's the crack of old Black's whip! Pick yer bushes, quick! All jump when I whistle."

Each man secreted himself along the roadside. The stage came swinging along handsomely, those inside were laughing heartily about something, an' old Black was just giving a delicate touch to the flank of the off leader when the Colonel gave a shrill, quick whistle, and five men sprang into the road.

The horses stopped as suddenly as if it were a matter of common occurrence. Old Black dropped the reins, crossed his legs and stared into the sky and the passengers all put out their heads with a rigidity equalled only by that which they withdrew them as they saw the dominoes and revolvers of the road agents.

"Seems to be somethin' the matter, gentlemen," said the Colonel, blandly, as he opened the door. "Won't you please get out? Don't trouble yourself to draw—cos my friend here's got his weapon cocked on ye... [illegible] ... asked he of the first passenger who descended from the stage. "Hev—Well, now, that's lucky. Just put yer hands behind you, please—so, that's it." And the unfortunate man was securely bound in an instant.

The remaining passengers were treated with similar courtesy, and the Colonel and his friends examined the pockets of the captives. Old Black remained unmolested, for who ever heard of a stage driver having money?

"Boys," said the Colonel, calling his brother agents aside and comparing receipts, "tain't much of a haul, but there's one woman an' she's old enough to be a feller's grandmother. Better let her alone, eh?"

"Like enough she'll pan out more 'n all the rest of the stage put together," growled Cranks, carefully testing the thickness of the case of a gold watch. "Jest like the low lived, decept fulness of some folks to hire an old woman to carry their money so it'll go safer. Mebbe what she's got ain't nothin' to some folks that's got hosses that kin win 'em money at races, but—"

The Colonel abruptly ended the conversation and approached the stage. He was very chivalrous, but Cranks' sarcastic reference to Tipsie needed avenging, and as he could not consistently with business arrangements put an end to Cranks, the old lady would have to suffer.

"I beg your pardon, ma'am," said the Colonel, raising his hat politely with one hand while he opened the coach door with the other, "but we're taking up a collection for some deserving object. We wuz a goin' to make the gentlemen fork over the hull amount, but ez they hain't got enough, we will hev to bother you."

The old lady trembled, felt for her pocket book, and raised her veil. The colonel looked into her face, slammed the stage door and sitting down on the hub of one of the wheels stared vacantly into space.

"Nothing?" queried Perkins, in a whisper and with a face full of genuine sympathy.

"No—yes," said the Colonel, dreamily. "That is, untie 'em, and let the stage go ahead," he continued, springing to his feet. "I'll hurry back to the cabin." And the Colonel dashed into the bushes, and left his followers so paralyzed with astonishment that Old Black afterward remarked that "ef there'd been anybody to hold the hosses he could hev cleaned the hull crowd with his whip."

The passengers, now relieved of their weapons were unbound, allowed to enter the stage and the door was slammed, upon which Old Black picked up his reins as coolly as if he had lain them down at a station while the horses were being changed, then he cracked his whip and the stage rolled off, while the Colonel's party hastened back to their hut, fondly inspecting as they went certain flasks they had obtained while transacting their business with the occupants of the stage.

Great was the surprise of the road agents as they entered their hut for there stood the Colonel in a clean white shirt and in a suit of clothing made up from the limited spare wardrobes of the other members of the gang.

But the suspicious Cranks speedily subordinated his wonder to his prudence, as laying on the table a watch, two pistols, a pocket book and a heavy purse he exclaimed:

"Come Colonel, bizness before pleasure, let's divide and scatter. Ef anybody should hear 'bout it an' find our trail, an' ketch the traps in our possession, they might—"

"Divide yerselves!" said the Colonel, with abruptness and a great oath. "I don't want none of it."

"Colonel," said Perkins, removing his own domino, and looking anxiously into the leader's face, "be you sick? Here's some bully brandy I found in one of the passenger's pockets."

"I hain't nothin'," replied the Colonel with averted eyes. "I'm goin', and I'm a returnin' from this bizness forever."

"Ain't a-going to turn evidence?" cried Cranks, grasping the pistol on the table.

"I'm a goin' to make a lead mine of you ef you don't take that back!" roared the Colonel, with a bound, which caused Cranks to drop the pistol and retire precipitately forward, apologizing as he went. "I'm goin' to tend to my own bizness, an' that's enough to keep any man bizzy. Somebody lend me $50 till I see him agin."

Perkins pressed the money into the Colonel's hand, and within two minutes the Colonel was on Tipsie's back and galloped on in the direction the stage had taken.

He overtook it, he passed it, and still galloped on.

The people at Mud Gulch knew the Colonel well, and made it a rule never to be astonished at anything he did, but they made it an exception to the rule when the Colonel canvassed the principal bar rooms for men who wished to purchase a horse, and when a gambler who was flush obtained Tipsie in exchange for twenty slugs—only a thousand dollars, when the Colonel had always said that there wasn't gold enough on top of the ground to buy her—Mud Gulch experienced a decided sensation.

One or two enterprising persons speedily discovered that the Colonel was not in a communicative mood, so every one retired to his favorite saloon and bet according to his own opinion of the Colonel's motives and actions.

But when the Colonel, after remaining in a barber shop half an hour, emerged with his face clean shaved and hair neatly trimmed and parted, betting was so wild that a cool headed sporting man speedily made a fortune by betting against every theory that was advanced.

Then the Colonel made a tour of the stores and fitted himself with a new suit of clothes, carefully eschewing all of the generous patterns and pronounced colors so dear to the average miner. He bought a new hat, and put on a pair of boots, and pruned his finger nails and, stranger than all, he mildly declined all invitations to drink.

As the Colonel stood in the door of the principal saloon, where the stage always stopped, the Challenge Hill constable was seen to approach the Colonel and tap him on the shoulder, upon which all men who bet that the Colonel was dodging somebody claimed the stakes, but those who stood near the Colonel heard the constable say:

"Colonel, I take it all back, an' I own up fair an square. When I seed you get out of Challenge Hill, it come to me all of a sudden that you might be in the road-agent business, so I followed you—duty you know; but when I seed you sell Tipsie I knowed I was on the wrong trail. I would n't suspect you, now, if all the State wuz robbed, and I'll give you satisfaction any way you want it."

"It's all right," said the Colonel with a smile. The constable afterward said that nobody had any idea of how churchy the Colonel smiled when his beard was off. "Give this fifty to Jim Perkins the first time you see him. I'm leavin' the State."

Suddenly the stage pulled up to the door with a crash, and the male passengers hurried into the saloon in a state of utter indignation and impecuniosity.

The story of the robbery attracted everybody, and during the excitement the Colonel slipped out quietly and opened the door of the stage. The old lady started and cried,

"George!"

And the Colonel jumped into the stage and put his arms tenderly about the trembling form of the old lady, exclaiming,

"Mother!"

BUSH FIGHTING ARTILLERY.—The Ashantee war has tested the merits for bush-fighting of three kinds of artillery—the smallest guns in the British service. One is a small 7 pounder 29 inches long and weighing 150 pounds. The charge is six ounces of powder and it throws a shell of 7 pounds or a case of 70 musket bullets. It is made of steel and rifled. The second was a smooth bore howitzer weighing 250 pounds. The third was the Gatling gun. All three were taken as far as the Prah, but there the Gatling and the howitzer were left behind as comparatively useless, and the little 7 pounder did all the execution. Its value, which was before tested in Abyssinia, is spoken of by Sir Garnet Wolseley in the highest terms.

SOURCE OF THE YANGTSZE.—According to the North China Herald Russia is actively engaged at the present time exploring Central Asia. Capt Prjewalski has penetrated nearly to the source of the Yangtsze, having passed to the west end of the Kokonor. The sources of the great river prove to be at an enormous altitude—some 14 900 feet or 15,000 feet over the sea, the lake itself being some 1-,000

THE DISCUSSION AT EUGENE

[illegible] JACKSON COUNTY [illegible] GROVER [illegible]

[illegible] MAY 2, 1874

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

The speaking at Eugene yesterday had an element of variety. Mr. Tolman began by saying that this was the first menagerie with which he ever traveled with but one camel in it. He continued his speech for one hour with similar efforts at wit until it became monotonous and stale. Much self-laudation and begging for votes filled up the time not devoted to puerile attempts at wit.

"Pity the sorrows of a poor old man Whose trembling limbs have borne him to your door."

He played upon the King's English in the following style: [illegible] Grover he says [illegible] This here State Board [illegible] got together. There is fellows that [illegible] round there. Old hacks that [illegible] held office. Whether this style was a doing to catch farmers the result of bad associations or the want of education, deponent saith not. Tolman spoke of his own pedigree as if he were a horse. Indeed, one enthusiastic farmer wanted to know if that "poor old obscure fellow was goin' along as a burlesque on the canvass." He finally took his seat and announced that "The camels are coming."

If laughter and merriment could be taken for applause Tolman had his full share. It is evident the menagerie had one clown as well as one camel.

Mr. Campbell now came forward amid loud and continued applause. For one hour and a half he held the people in rapt and admiring attention as he reviewed the history of parties before and since the war—their misdeeds and corruption—the want of any other distinction between the two old parties than the spoils of office—the rise of the Independent movement as the necessary effect of adequate causes found in the rings, monopolies and corruptions of the old parties. Nor was the speaker wanting in repartee, humor and wit. He [illegible] the house several times with [illegible] He took his seat amid demonstrations which told how [illegible] [illegible] down [illegible] 300 majority over [illegible] the Independent ticket.

Gov. Grover came [illegible] He sat down with [illegible] applause. The Governor [illegible] manifested some [illegible] rich contrast with [illegible] of Tolman [illegible] humor [illegible] ing [illegible] Governor [illegible] stealing [illegible]

Lane [illegible] will give the Governor only two votes. I am truly his [illegible]

Yours [illegible] JUNIANUS.

The day is not far distant, says a late paper, when the [illegible] death as a journey to [illegible] Louisville Courier-Journal asserts in this [illegible] which we can all go as dead-heads.

Farmer (concealing [illegible] whip)—Come here, Charlie, I want to tell you something. Charlie—Tell it to somebody else. My pa says there are some things little boys oughtn't to know.
